

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental solution, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

The Great Spider.

The little humming bird that glitters in the sun has a very frightful enemy. The enemy will set a trap for him, and the poor little bird will flutter in. Once in, there is no chance of getting out again. The trap is a strong, thick web, woven by a spider. Can a spider catch a bird? Yes; there is a kind of spider that can. Indeed, it is called "bird catching spider." It makes a little tunnel for itself to live in, and lines it with a white substance like muslin. Here it lies in wait for its prey, and is ready to pounce out upon any poor little bird that gets entangled in its net. The spider is quite a monster to look at it. Its legs are as thick as a quill, and it is covered all over with coarse hairs. If you touch the hairs they would run into your fingers and make them smart and tingle for several days. There is one kind of bird catching spider that is not content to wait at home for its prey. It goes out hunting. It will climb the trees and hide itself under the leaves. If it can find the nest of the humming-birds it will soon devour the little ones. If it sees the mother bird coming, it will dart upon her and seize her with its great claws. The poor little humming-bird can never get away if she is once caught. Where do these great spiders live? In India and South America. A traveller in South America wanted to bring one of these spiders home with him. He asked some Indian children to catch one for him. The next day he saw them bringing the spider to him. How do you think they brought it? They had tied a string round its body, and were leading along as if it had been a dog.—World at Home.

Temperance in Ontario.

The Temperance League connected with the city medical schools held a meeting last week in the lecture-room of the Toronto School of Medicine. It is very gratifying to know that 130 of the medical students of Toronto have taken the total abstinence pledge. This is another feature of the great moral movement in favor of temperance, and it is very encouraging to see the medical men of the future identifying themselves with it. Mr. F. S. Spence, the energetic secretary of the Association regarded this League and the Young Men's Prohibition Club as the backbone of the temperance movement. In times past reformers had labored and persevered with but little success to curb drunkenness. Now they demand Prohibition, and in due time they will get it. Their opponents had asked them to devote their time to the promotion of the moral education side of the question. He had to say that they were working away at both the moral education side and the legislation element. There were 223 places for the sale of liquor in this city today, but he hoped that in three months there would be only 150. All these places were authorized by Act of Parliament to make drunk anybody who had a desire to get into such a condition.

Temperance Pearls.

The saloon is a thing that can never be healed. It is one of those things that must be killed.

Ruskin said, "What women wills will be accomplished."

Woman wills to put down the liquor-traffic.

I believe, from fifty years' experience as a druggist, that three cases out of every four, were alcoholic stimulants have been used, would have got along as well without them.

A saloon can no more be run without using up boys than a flouring-mill without wheat or a saw-mill without logs. The only question is, "Whose boys? Your boys or mine? Our boys or our neighbors?"—Christian Instructor.

A senator asked Mrs. Sallie Chapin why women did not leave the temperance work to man to make the laws. They would be responsible and take the consequences. "Because," she answered, "you do the work now, and women take the consequences."

I hold it to be the most awful thing conceivable for the Government to countenance the drink-traffic by licensing it and taking a revenue for it, thus becoming a partner in the business of "dealing wet damnation around the land."—Rev. A. J. Gordon.

The old British lion is hoary with age and rheumatism, and crippled by the use of so much beer, but he will get up all over before long, and his roar will shake the world in regard to this question.—Mrs. Youmans at National W. C. T. U. Convention.

It is high time that beautiful upon the mountains should be the feet of those that bring good tidings, and that publish peace. I look upon that as the great crusade of this generation. Our fathers went as crusaders to Palestine to rescue the living temples, in some respects, human beings for their Savior and their Lord.—Canon Farrar.

The educating power of the Sabbath is everywhere acknowledged. Let Sabbath-keeping and church-going be established among the most ignorant and degraded, and both the mental and moral uplift will be astonishing; and it is equally serviceable among the higher classes, many of whom read but very little.—Josephine C. Bateham.

The Sphinx.

Of the excavation now made around Egypt's most wonderful monument, the London Times says: "The paws of the sphinx, as they now appear, are a restoration of Roman date, being cased in comparatively small slabs, and to some extent hollow underneath. The breast of the sphinx has likewise been faced with slabs, apparently in Roman times; and these slabs have again been repaired by cutting away the weathered surface and inserting a fresh facing. Like the legs of the Colossi of the Plain, and those of the great statues at Abou Simble, the paws of the sphinx are covered with the Greek scrawls of early travellers; but these graffiti are mostly of a late period, and so slightly scratched that few are legible throughout. Such as they are, however, Prof. Maspero has, it is understood, devoted himself to the ungrateful and difficult task of translating them.

"M. Grebaut's excavations are not limited to the clearance of the sphinx only. Various interesting tombs have lately been discovered in the vicinity of the Great Pyramid, and to the westward the face of the Libyan Cliff has been reached where it forms the natural boundary of the Pyramid plateau. Some good early rock-cut tombs, with built fore courts, have been found in the face of this cliff, in two of which the walled-up recesses, or secret chambers, called 'serdabs,' which were constructed for the safe keeping of funerary portrait statues, are yet intact with their contents. One contains a monolithic group of four figures representing the deceased, his wife, his brother, and a child. In another has been found a beautiful alabaster altar, sculptured in bas-relief with the likeness of one Ra-ur; and on the walls of another occurs the name of Aseska-f, the successor of Menkara (Mencheres) of the fourth dynasty. By far the most interesting of these recent tomb discoveries is that of the sepulchre of a certain 'Suten Se,' or 'Royal Son,' named Khufu-kha-f ('the glory of Khufu'), who was probably the son of the builder of the Great Pyramid. The door way of the inner chamber of this tomb is decorated in bas-relief with the earliest representation of a column yet discovered. The shaft is shown to be cylindrical, tapering slightly towards the top, where it ends in a ring surmounted by an everted capital resembling the usual lotus capital, but without the graceful curvature of outline which distinguishes the lotus order. The base of the shaft is finished by a rounded drum. In this interesting door way we have the profile portrait of a perfect column, base, shaft, torus, and capital complete, thus showing that as an architectural feature the column with all its members was already fully developed at the time of the fourth dynasty. The celebrated tombs of Beni Hassan, in which occur the earlier columns previously known belong to the twelfth dynasty, and are about 1,200 years later than the era Khufu."—N. Y. Observer.

The number of theological students in Germany has increased from 1,542 in 1877, to 4,683 in 1886.

An attempt to secure a conference of representatives of the Established and Free Churches of Scotland, with a view to possible reunion, has failed.

The Rev. Dr. Talmage, of Brooklyn, received into his Church, on Sabbath morning last, 342 new members.

Having in our official capacity of the Plymouth Hospital Committee been asked to test and prove the effectiveness of many different articles to be used as disinfectants in sickrooms and as preventives of infectious fevers, report that Darby's Prophylactic Fluid has been thoroughly tested during the recent Typhoid epidemic in this place. It proved most efficacious in staying the spread of the fever.
